Wireton Resident Suffers Fractured Skull When Struck By Train

"BUMMER" KILLS MILL WORKMAN

Body of Lawrence Noseck, Aged About 42, Is Found By Yardmaster At Allenport At Allenport Station Early Today

THEORY AS TO HIS DEATH

Believed That Noseck Attempted to Board the Train While It Is Running Through Allenport, And Knocked Against the Fence Separating Tracks

Presumably struck and instantly killed by the "bummer" early this morning at the Allenport station, the body of Lawrence Noseck, aged about 42 years, was found lying on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, by Yardmaster Robert Jones, of Allenport, who is in the employ of the Pittsburgh Steel company, Monessen, a short time later. Jones had just returned from Charleroi on the last street car southbound and upon discovering the body immediately called the assistance of his brothers, who reported the catastrophe to the authorities.

The body was removed to the mortuary of Harold R. Toner of North Belle Vernon, where his identification was learned from insurance policies and papers in his clothing. The address of the man was given as Newell, but it has been learned that he recently lived in Wireton, employed at the Steel plant there, later going to Newell and has been living in a railroad camp. He had no known relatives.

It is believed that the man attempted to board the train while it was running through the Allenport station, and being unsuccessful, he was struck and knocked against an iron fence that separates the tracks at that point. A fractured skull was evidently the cause of his death. He has no other marks upon his body.

BURGLARS MAKE A $3,000 HAUL

Burglars early yesterday morning made a $3,000 haul when they entered the store of George E. Thomassy at Burgettstown. Entrance was effected through a cellar window, and from the cellar the thieves made their way to the main room.

Included in the loot was two dozen traveling bags, two dozen suit cases, 100 pairs of shoes, a number of men's suits, a large lot of hosiery, ties jewelry and other things had been taken. The cellar and main store room were thoroughly ransacked, even the show windows being stripped.

It is evident from the amount of merchandise taken that a truck was used to haul the loot away. Firemen returning from a fire out the Hickory road shortly after 2 o'clock passed an

CITY TO HAVE RAISE IN THE PRICE OF GAS

And now the Fayette County Gas company has served notice on its patrons at Uniontown that on and after November 1 the price of natural gas will be raised 10 cents per 1,000 cubic feet—from 47 to 57 cents. The city council is to take action on whether or not they will join in with Pittsburgh and help contest the granting of the new rate by the Interstate commission. The Fayette company claims that the most of its gas is transported from the West Virginia field and the wholesale price has been advanced to them so they have no other course but to pass it on to the consumer. That natural gas is becoming scarcer no one denies but that it should cost so much more is a question which is going to be strongly contested.

Man Sent To Hospital, Others Under Arrest In Affray At Lincoln Hill

DEEMS BABY'S CHANCES POOR; STRANGLES CHILD

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 27—"I did not believe my baby would have a fair chance in this world—because my husband refused to believe the child legitimate."

With this explanation, Mrs. Blanche Tobias, 21, of Wooster, Ohio, admitted today to authorities she strangled her two-weeks' old baby Sunday. Prosecutor J. O. Fritz, of Wooster, filed a first degree murder charge against the mother.

Admission of killing came, according to Fritz, after Mrs. Tobias was confronted with a physician's certificate which indicated the child had been strangled to death.

"I pinched my baby's nose and pressed his throat. He died right away," Mrs. Tobias told Fritz, he said. "My child would never have had a fair chance in this world. He did not look like his father."

The husband, George Tobias, denied parentage to the child. Two months before the baby's birth, George, and his father, Joseph Tobias, were charged with brutally beating the expectant mother.

The charges were dropped.

Old Folks Day Is A Great Success

A special service in honor of those who have reached and passed the three score and ten mile post was held in the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon. This was the most largely attended service of the kind ever held in the church—twenty-four elderly men and women being present. Their ages ranged from 70 to 94 years, the average being 78. The transportation committee, under the leadership of Lynn Robertson, assisted by James Dawson, Leslie Kinder, James Johns, B. Frank Smith, and Van L. Speers, was busy bringing them to the service and seeing them safely home. The reception committee, headed by Mrs. Edwin McKay, assisted by Mrs. G. B. Nolan, Grace Gelder, Mary Strausser and Mary Hough, made them comfortable and happy at the church.

The sermon was preached by the pastor, the Rev. Frank S. Montgomery, who used the twenty-third psalm for his text. At the close of the service two young ladies, Mary Strausser and Mary Hough, presented each one with a pink rose, and a celluloid book mark, autographed by the pastor and

Mr. Bigler suffered a fractured skull and other hurts, and the chances for his recovery are reported meagre. The two men in the machine stopped, and rendered assistance to the aged man. The accident was not witnessed by any persons, it is said.

NOVEMBER 17, DATE OF JIM SCOTT'S TRIAL

Jim Scott, alleged colored slayer of Police Chief George Rae at West Newton several weeks ago, will be called for trial on Monday morning, November 17, provided the grand jury week, it has been made known.

When Scott was finally arrested by authorities in West Virginia, a week after the crime it was thought that the county courts would be forced to appoint a legal counsel for the alleged slayer.

However, it was stated Saturday morning that Attorney Adam B. Shaffer had been engaged by Scott to defend him at the coming trial. The commonwealth in the case, will be looked after by District Attorney

Nevin A. Cort and Attorney P. K. Shaner.

Scott is accused of having shot and killed the West Newton police chief, while the latter was remonstrating with Scott and three other negroes over being disorderly on the streets of West Newton.

Scott escaped immediately after the affair and was not captured until he had escaped to West Virginia. Captain Thomas McLaughlin of Troy is the prosecutor in the case.

Immensity of Waters
Stirs the Imagination

Picture a place of inky darkness and intense cold; a region to which the rays of the sun never have penetrated; a barren waste seemingly unending, devoid of vegetation and life, with oozy slopes inhabited by queer, crawling creatures; a place where no man could exist for an instant, where no work of man could be placed without being crushed to shapeless uselessness under a weight greater than all the mountains of the earth.

Most of our globe is like that, for that is the bottom of the sea, as pictured by modern science, writes Raymond J. Brown in the Popular Science Monthly.

In round numbers the earth's surface consists of 57,000,000 square miles of land and 140,000,000 square miles of water. These figures, however, give but a vague idea of the real immensity of the vast, marvelous sea.

The average depth of sea is five times greater than the average height of land above sea level over the whole earth, the average depth of the sea being more than two and one-half miles, while the average height of land is half a mile. If Mount Everest, tallest mountain on earth, five and one-half miles high, were dropped into one of the deepest parts of the ocean, the summit would be submerged by more than half a mile. In fact, if all the land could be leveled off flush with the sea, and all the debris dumped in the water, the sea could scarcely be changed at all. There still would be an ocean one and three-fourths miles deep.

Once Malevolent, Now
Made to Serve Mankind

Some of the most useful of the gifts of science were first revealed to mankind in a malevolent rather than a benevolent aspect, London Tit-Bit observes. But even the most destructive agencies may in the course of time be brought into the constructive service of the human race.

Steel, man's most useful metal, made its appearance in the form of swords and spearsheads for the killing of man. Now we employ it for the skeletons of skyscrapers and steamships.

Petroleum was first employed as "Greek fire" for setting ships ablaze. Now it is employed, among other things, as fuel for the propulsion of ships.

Many of our modern medicines were used by savages for poisoning their arrow points. Strichnine and aconite had this ill-omened origin. Another arrow poison, obtained by the savages from cassava juice, is hydrocyanic acid, which in the hands of the modern metallurgist extracts nine-tenths of the gold supply of the world.

Arsenic, which during the Renaissance was the fashionable means of poisoning people, is now used for the more laudable purpose of poisoning plant pests and the parasites of man.

Boaster "Taken Down"

On a football field a man with a loud voice was boasting to a party of admiring youngsters of the doughty deeds he had done on the football field in days gone by. Suddenly he turned his attention to the band.

"Ah!" he observed, "those fellows play decently, but they've fallen off terribly since I was a member of the band."

"What?" ejaculated one of his hearers. "You played with that lot?"

"Certainly," was the reply; "I was with them for years."

The crowd roared and the boastful one hastily retired on learning that the band in question was composed of harmless inmates of the local lunatic asylum.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Best Way to Use Phone

Telephone companies for many years have reiterated the advice that users should talk directly into the transmitter, but recent tests have for the first time set forth in concrete terms the result of disobeying the injunction. It was found that to talk with the lips six inches from the transmitter was equivalent to inserting another 200 miles of line between the speaker and the listener. The best results were obtained, the tests disclosed, when the mouth was only one-half inch from the transmitter and facing directly into it, thus avoiding deflection of sound waves.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Negative Beauty

Perhaps the most to be aimed at in domestic architecture is negative beauty, a condition of things which invites or suggests beauty to those who are capable of the sentiment, because a house, truly viewed, is but a setting, a background, and is not to be pushed to the front and made much of for its own sake. It is for shelter, for comfort, for health and hospitality, to eat and sleep in, to be born in and to die in, and it is to accord in appearance with homely everyday usages, and with natural, universal objects and scenes.—John Burroughs.

Few Horses in Cities

When the small boy saw a colt, while on a summer outing, he said ruefully, "Who pulled his rockers off?" It will soon become necessary for illustrators to include the horse and cow in the animal book from which the average child gets his knowledge of the world about him, since not one youngster in a thousand sees a horse in the city. When a child comes to the word "carriage" in a story, it must be explained to him as chariot or litter or howdah as explained, since he never sees one, unless it be in the motion pictures.

Is Your SPINE

In Line?

Perfect alignment of the spine means perfect health. Imperfect alignment means that one of more of the vertebrae of the spine are out of the natural position. This produces pressure on the delicate nerves at the point where they leave the spine. Because of this the brain cannot get the full amount of life force over them.

Whatever part of the body, whether it is the heart, stomach, lungs, kidneys, etc., that is supplied by a pinched nerve is bound to be weak, because every cell in the body receives its life force over the nervous system, and if the nerve is pinched its life force is decreased.

Chiropractic Adjustments will put your spine in line and health follows.

SLAUGHTER DUCKS BY THE THOUSANDS

Mexicans Use Batteries of Guns on Fowl.

Mexico City.—Mexican sportsmen, in their fight to preserve the country's diminishing stock of ducks from pot hunters, who hundreds of times yearly slaughter as high as 2,000 birds at a single discharge of their "armadas," have again lost. Publication of the 1924 hunting regulations by the fish and game bureau of the department of agriculture shows that the hunting of wild ducks by means of "armadas," or great batteries of shotguns, will be permitted from November 1 to February 30.

While only two shots a week from each "armada" are permitted, this is considered a minimum restriction, as the fowl will not return to the same lake in sufficient numbers to make the string of more than two "armadas" a week profitable.

Divide With Land Owners.

Throughout the valley of Mexico are scores of shallow lakes where every variety of duck that summers in the United States and Canada can be found during the winter. Dotted the shores of these lakes are Indian villages whose inhabitants eke out a precarious existence during the summer months by hunting ducks.

By giving from one-third to one-half of their spoils to the owners of the lands in which the lakes are situated they are able to obtain permission to make enormous bags. Some of the land owners, it is estimated, receive as much as $6,000 pesos ($15,000) a year as their share.

Sportsmen who have shot over the greater part of the valley declare that not less than fifty of these "armadas," each with an average of 150 barrels, are shot at least twice a week for four months each year, and with hundreds of ducks to the average bag, the total number slaughtered each winter reaches a staggering figure.

In placing their batteries the Indians throw up a low breastwork of mud and plants at a strategic point in one of the shallow lakes and imbed in the ramparts as high as 200 barrels of all kinds, ranging from those of ancient shotguns to blunderbusses. These are loaded with black powder and all sorts of missiles and connected by a train of powder to an old flintlock, which is discharged by means of a string from the marksman's hiding place.

When the "armada" is loaded and the ducks begin to feed in the lake, generally about noon, the entire population of the village operating the "armada" begins, with infinite patience and without frightening the game, to drive the ducks within range.

When this has been done the "armada" is discharged and the hunt for the victims, hundreds of them only crippled, begins. As many as two thousand ducks have been shot down in a single discharge of the great "armada" at Penon Viejo, near the Mexican capital.

After the game is sold the village celebrates with a big carnival and then waits until new victims gather.

Appeals to U. S. Clubs Planned.

Despairing after repeated attempts of limiting pot hunting through local regulations, Mexican sportsmen are planning to address an appeal to game commissions and gun clubs in the United States and Canada in the hope that, by combined action, it may be possible to halt the annual massacre.

They argue that the funds and efforts being expended by Mexico's northern neighbors to protect migratory game in those countries are wasted if, when the birds reach Mexico in the winter, they are bagged almost without restriction. The practice, they declare, is as unsportsmanlike as the trapping of quail, shipments of which totaling as high as 15,000 are not uncommon in northern Mexico, and will send the ducks after the vanished wild pigeons unless regulated.

Pintail make up most of the bags, but canvasbacks, mallard, widgeon, bluebills, redheads and teal of all kinds are also shot down by hundreds of thousands.

Arctic Ice Interferes With Far-North Radio

Ottawa, Ont.—Establishment of the farthest north radio station in the Arctic ocean at Herschel island in the Arctic ocean at the mouth of the Mackenzie river, has been abandoned for this year, the national defense department of Canada announces, because of failure of the motorship Lady Kindersley to get through ice in the Arctic ocean with equipment.

Ice in the Arctic ocean this summer not only caught the Lady Kindersley, but seized the trading schooner Arctic of San Francisco and crippled and turned back the cutter Bear of the United States coast guard. This vessel was to have taken off a group of 12 persons left on Wrangell island, north of Siberia, in 1923.

Leech Bites Snake

Fulton, Mo.—A group of fishermen from this city, fishing on the Auxvasse creek, near Fulton, witnessed a fight between a leech and a snake. The leech was between six and eight inches long and had landed on the back of the snake. The snake was around in the water quite awhile and finally disappeared down the creek.

NEW PORT SOUGHT BY ANCIENT CITIES

Jaffa and Haifa Rivals in Race for Harbor.

Jerusalem.—The spirited rivalry between two of the oldest and most famous biblical cities in the world, Jaffa and Haifa, as to which will be selected as the chief harbor of the new, modern Palestine now emerging as a result of Jewish activities in the Holy Land, is stimulating industrial and civic progress in the two rival cities.

Jaffa and Haifa are the only two ports in Palestine, and, because of their poor natural facilities—they are the same practically as in those ancient days when the Phoenicians were rulers of the Mediterranean—they cannot handle the growing trade of Palestine and thus form one of the chief obstacles toward the development of a larger import and export business.

Great Britain, which holds the League of Nations mandate over Palestine and under whose rule Zionist rehabilitation projects are carried out, has long contemplated constructing a great modern harbor at either Haifa or Jaffa.

Now that action is soon to be taken, the two cities are engaged in a hot controversy, attempting to influence the choice of the British colonial

Jaffa, aided by its modern suburb, Tel-Aviv, a 100 per cent Jewish city, now a thriving municipality of 15,000, built upon a site which fifteen years ago was a barren sand dune, has gone ahead of Haifa in building activities.

Haifa, on the other hand, has led in industrial enterprise, and points with pride to its most notable examples of industrial success, its flour mill and soap and oil factory. The imposing building and modern machinery of the flour mill owe their establishment to Baron Edmond de Rothschild of Paris. The soap and oil factory was financed by a group of American, European and Palestine Jews, who invested almost $1,000,000.

City Swallows Up Rural Mill of 99 Years Ago

Pittsburgh.—One year less than a century ago an iron mill was built on the outskirts of Pittsburgh. It was a small affair, constructed on the banks of the Allegheny river by the firm of Miltenberger & Brown. For 99 years it grew and played an important part in the city's industrial life, but now, instead of being on the outskirts of Pittsburgh, it stands within a few blocks of the very heart of the city's shopping and office center.

And this is the chief reason the oldest independent iron and steel mill in Pittsburgh is being torn down. The firm of Brown & Co., Inc., the present owners, is going out of business because there is too much business.

The site of the mill occupies about three acres, and if it continued operation it would be necessary to expand. And there is no room for expansion. On three sides are tall buildings and on the other is the river.

J. Stuart Brown, grandson of the founder, said he did not wish to assume the responsibility of erecting a new plant elsewhere, and he felt he deserved a rest. Consequently the business will be discontinued.

Decision to stop work in the mill was reached last June, and not a wheel of its machinery has turned since. When running at full capacity the plant employed between 400 and 600 men. Most of the old employees have found work elsewhere.

Harvests Wheat Crop From Ancient Seed

Tacoma, Wash.—F. S. Johnston, a farmer near Morton, Wash., has just harvested a bumper crop of wheat that he says came from seed taken from an Egyptian tomb. Mr. Johnston says he got the seeds four years ago and this year the increase was enough to plant 15 acres. He has just finished harvesting the crop, which netted 729 bushels for an average of 48.6 bushels to the acre. The grain is white and very hard, the straw short, the heads prolific, and Mr. Johnston says it is one of the best varieties of spring wheat he has ever grown. It was not learned from what tomb the wheat was obtained.

Build Boilers With 1,200-Pound Pressure

Boston.—The power station which an electric illuminating company of Boston is erecting at Weymouth will operate boilers working under a pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch. This is five times the pressure of the most powerful locomotive and three times that ever before used in a commercial power station.

Parts of the boiler must have the strength of a cannon. The boiler drum will be 34 feet long, with walls of solid steel 4 inches thick. The original unit of the plans involve 400,000 horsepower, with boilers and turbo-generators housed in a building 145 by 800 feet, 125 feet high. The stacks will far overtop Bunker Hill monument, and their interior diameter will be so great that a street car could be lowered down the stacks without touching the sides.

Dried Rice Fatal to One Household Pest

Whence do all the beetles, ants and flies come that swarm about the house, and particularly in the kitchen and larder? And what is the best way to get rid of them? These two questions are always very much in the minds of householders.

The first is not easy to answer. The intrusiveness of beetles and cockroaches is something unanny. They are found down deep wines, and they appear in new ships the moment steam is raised. Wherever there is a moist heat there they come quickly.

The entry of ants into a house is often traceable to some opening near the ground, such as a ventilator. Moths come in through the open windows closed or guarded by mosquito nettings after lighting up time should keep them out.

The ant is, of course, intelligent. But ground rice, it is said, nuds his weakness. Sprinkle the rice in his track, and he will eat of it greedily. Then it swells within him and kills him. But the rice must not be thrown down on a wet floor or it will swell before he eats it, and he will come to no harm.

English Law a Paradox

One may be fined for stopping a dog fight or not stopping a dog fight. But even better, the Manchester Guardian relates. At a seaside town, a man walked into a post office followed by a huge dog. A woman was already at the public counter, and she also had a dog. The two dogs began to fight.

The man did not attempt to interfere. He appealed to the girl assistant, who was on the safe side of the counter, to come over and part the combatants. She declined, very naturally. Eventually the turmoil ceased, and then the dog owner lodged a complaint with the postmaster that his subordinate had permitted confusion in the office and upset the public.

Famous Roman Monument

Trajan's column is a superb marble column in Trajan's forum at Rome, erected in 114 A. D., by the senate and the Roman people, to commemorate the victories of Emperor Trajan (98-117 A. D.) over the Dacians, the Kars City Times tells us. It is 132 feet high and about 12 feet in diameter, and is constructed of 34 blocks of Carrara marble, adorned with sculptures in bas-relief. The summit, which is reached by a spiral staircase of 185 steps, was originally surmounted by a colossal gilded statue of the emperor, but this, having fallen to the ground, was replaced by Pope Sixtus V in the sixteenth century with one of St. Peter, 11 feet high. The ashes of Trajan rest beneath this column.

Financial or Otherwise?

The tongues of the gossips were busy in the suburban town, over the latest marriage. "Have you seen the bride?" asked one. "Has her husband any money?"

"I don't know about that," replied the other with some reluctance. "You know he didn't live here."

"Well," said the first speaker, "you know she said she never would marry a poor man."

"I know, my dear, but she hasn't been married a month, yet everybody is saying, 'poor man.'"

RUINATION.

Our foreign trade has been ruined by Republican tariffs, declare the Democratic and Third Party campaigners. But our sales to the rest of the world in September, 1924, were $142,000,000 greater than in September, 1923. We can stand a lot of that kind of ruin.
